

Are you an Australian Registered Nurse, currently working in an Australian Emergency Department?

Do you ever feel that patient care is suffering because you are overwhelmed?

The purpose of this study is to explore moral distress as experienced by ECRNs (with less than five years' experience) and RNs (with more than five years' experience) working in EDs within Australia.

We also want to know what you think will help to make things better, and we are looking for participants to trial audio diaries as a way of mitigating moral distress.

Scan the QR Code below for more information and to participate today for a chance to win 1 of 5 $100 gift vouchers!

Be part of the solution!

https://murdochuni.syd1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_eJLYfMDMLEve0h8

This research forms part of a PhD. If you have any questions related to the research, please contact Clare Walters:
C.Walters@murdoch.edu.au or
Vicki Cope
V.Cope@murdoch.edu.au

This project has been approved by the Murdoch University Human Research Ethics Committee approval number: 2025/037

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact them on Human.Ethics@murdoch.edu.au